

Born to Serve

In a short span to time, Lilavati hospital has positioned itself to reach the level of an institution of excellence, says Raelene Bhundoo

Lilavati Hospital & Research Centre

In the quiet corners of one of the busy suburbs of Mumbai (Bandra), stands a trusted landmark spread across an area of 2,20,000 sq. feet, an institution dedicated to deliver quality healthcare with a human touch. Indeed, it has in a short span of 13 years earned recognition among the top Bollywood stars as well as the common citizens of Mumbai and citizens all over the country. The popularity of this institution is evident in the city. A bus stop is christened after its name. By now its crystal clear which hospital is this. Yes, it's Lilavati Hospital and Research Centre, a multi-speciality hospital that provides not only medical treatment but also provides an excellent environment for the patient and also to relatives valuing the patient's need for privacy. Lilavati Hospital is one among the best hospitals in India encompassing modern healthcare facilities and state-of-art technology. This is the reason why Royal College of Surgeons chose Lilavati Hospital to conduct their first FRCS Examination outside Edinburgh. The hospital has won to its credit, the Reader's Digest and India Today's 'Most Trusted Brand' award this year.

As you enter the hospital complex, what first grabs your attention is the small little lawn in the center with a beautiful water fountain surrounded with attractive flowering plants. And then, the next to astonish you is the huge 12 storey tall building. Once you enter the hospital premises you will be spellbound by the kind of atmosphere inside. The entire setup of the hospital is just like a five star hotel. The environment within the hospital is very